Harry Tucker.

The only thing about it is that when a fellow goes out to get his favorite policeman to take him up, he won't know where to find him; and the question is, "Where tro we at?"

man to take difficulty to the fire a policy of the bound of the fire we at?

It must be uncomfortable for a fellow to get arrected by a stringe policeman. A fellow who is in the habit of setting arrected in the Second District, and who is acquainted with the comfortable dormituries on the second floor of the Second Market, will naturally raise a kick about hanging up his shoes at the Old Market of out on the Farm.

But time brings changes, and along with them come things we hate to see.

We hate to see our old triend Fatty fedford pause, hesitate and reflect when he reaches Seventh Street. The street whereon he has shone in splendor for many years.

We say we hate to see him pause, stop and retrace his steps when he reaches that thoroughtare, for the powers that he have drawn a line there, across which he do e not cross.

Then we hate to see Jim Sowell relegated to the woods and the high brush of the Farm.

But, as we have said, changes come with time.

We hope to gather round the fire and contime lunches of buckwheats, while the lair cook softly sings all the popular songs of the day, with her sleeves roled up, disclosing the dimples on her chows. There is nothing we think more of than to have all the buckwheat cakes before us we can eat, and we love to have them served by the grl with the dimple that Kirkwood has placed at our table. Snow and sleet and winds way come and go, but give us all the buckwheats we want, and they may continue to go.

We hope that our good friend John Starke won't get mixed up in that little row between Russia and Japan. for if he does something has got to drop.

He started the d'sorder in Cuba, and now we have our hands full of unspeakable Pilipinos, and we would hate to take Russia, for it's hard enough to pronounce the names we now have.

We can't do that sometimes, after we have had an interview or two with our friend Gus Davis.

IN REVIVAL MEETING

The Pastor Tried, But Couldn't Stop It-Some May Go Crazy.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Jan. 13 .- A religious frenzy is now on at Mount Vernon, Wayne county, twenty miles from here.

The Rev. E. Richardson, who has been conducting a revival meeting for two weeks, arose to deliver a sermon last evening at 7 o'clock, and before he had half finished his exhortation more than half the people were on their knees in prayer and others were running throughout the suppliess.

As the hours passed on mon, women and children acted like wild people. Midnight came and the wonderful demonstration continued. Repeatedly did the parson attempt to adjourn the congregation, but without avail. On and on the hours sped, but the audience, many of whom were almost prostrated, continued to worship. And daylight dawned on Mount Vernon with the meeting yet in progress.

Not until 3 o'clock this afternoon did the meeting adjourn, none of the audience having taken food or drink in the inteteen hours that the demonstration continued. Some of the women present had to be carried from the sanctuary, owing to weakness.

Grave fears are entertained for the mind of many of the more fervent.

Thirty-seventh Annual Meeting to be Held Thursday.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday, January 14th. ut 6 P. M., in the assembly hall of the of the election of officers and directors for the ensuing twelve months, and for the reason that it is the well recognized time for a retrospective and prospective view of all business affairs, but also because some most interesting questions are just now confronting the chamber, it is hoped that mombers generally will be present at this session at least, so as to put themselves in touch with the work of the organization.

When Manager Richards takes his com pany to New York next week to present the melodrama, "To Be Buried Alive," the theatre-goers of Gotham will disthe melodrama, "To Be Buried Alive," the theatre-goers of Gotham will discover that the play is in the hands of the most capable people that have undertaken the presentation of a melodrama for years. The production has been changed in many respects since its opening night here, and not one of the changes but have improved the plece. Mr. Pascoe has gotten his bearings, and is as a natural and easy as could be desired. At sa Wilcox and Miss Parnell and Mrs. Richards are perfect in their roles, while the entire male support of the company is the peer of any melodrama which the South has ever seen. The play and the company are certain of a long run in New York.

There is to be a matinee to-day, with the same bill the remainder of the week at the Bijou.

Dangers of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful, as there is no danger whatever from a cold when it is properly treated in the beginning. For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effectual medicine in use for this discusse. It acts on nature's plan, loosons the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. For soil by all druggists. Thom.
